MAMMA ANDERSSON

(1962, Luleå, Sweden. Lives in Stockholm, Sweden)

Andersson is one of Sweden's most internationally recognized artists. Inspired by filmic imagery, theatre sets, and period interiors, Mamma Andersson's compositions are often dreamlike and expressive. While stylistic references include turn-of-the-century Nordic figurative painting, folk art, and local or contemporary vernacular, her evocative use of pictorial space and her juxtapositions of thick paint and textured washes is uniquely her own. Her subject matter revolves around evocative, melancholic landscapes and nondescript, private interiors. Her work is represented in collections such as Museum of Modern Art – MoMA, New York, Dallas Museum of Modern Art, Museum of Contemporary Art – MOCA, Los Angeles, Hammar museum, Los Angeles, Nasjonalmuseet, Oslo, Norway, Moderna Museet, Stockholm, Sweden. In 2006 she was awarded the first prize in Carnegie Art Award and in 2003 she represented Sweden in the Venice Biennale. She graduated from the Royal Institute of Arts in Stockholm in 1993.
