

The Ministry of Citizenship, the Fundação Bienal and Itaú present the 34th Bienal de São Paulo

The Fundação Bienal announces the programming of the 34th Bienal de São Paulo coproduced with 25 partner institutions in the city

Most of the spaces in São Paulo that are part of the exhibition are presenting solo shows by artists who will also be featured in the Bienal Pavilion from September through December. Open conversations and an international symposium are also included in the programming.

Conceived as a polyphony of voices and viewpoints on contemporary artistic production, the 34th Bienal de São Paulo – *Faz escuro mas eu canto [Though it's dark, still I sing] asserts the right to complexity and opacity, both in expressions of art and culture as well as in the identities of individuals and social groups. To this end, this edition of the event has adopted a new format, aimed at creating a multiplicity of distinct situations in which the encounter between artworks and the public can take place. With this strategy, the curatorial team, consisting of Jacopo Crivelli Visconti, Paulo Miyada, Carla Zaccagnini, Francesco Stocchi and Ruth Estévez, underscores how the interpretations and meanings attributed to artworks are elastic and influenced by a number of factors, including possible dialogues with other artworks shown around them.

Besides being extended in time, with the holding of solo shows and performative events in the Bienal pavilion starting February 8, the 34th Bienal will also expand in space, by working with more than 25 institutions in the city of São Paulo. The Fundação Bienal de São Paulo's broad network of institutional partnerships – cultivated for years and motivated by the power and richness made possible by dialogue and collaborations – is being deepened in this edition of the show and will involve, besides the institutional relationships, a network of artistic and curatorial relationships.

In most cases, the partnership consists of solo shows held at institutions in the city. These shows offer the public an opportunity to construct deeper readings of artists who will also participate in the large group show to be held in the Bienal Pavilion starting in September – where the artworks will come together in a dialogue with works of other artists and debates. Thus, about one quarter of the artists who are participating in the group show of the 34th Bienal will be featured in this network of exhibitions, which is the outcome of months of dialogue between managers and curators of the participating spaces. There are also cases in which the collaborations assume other formats, such as a video program and an international seminar.

“Located in the cultural complex of Ibirapuera Park and with its origin interlaced with that of other institutions, including MAM and MAC, since its inception the Fundação Bienal has been committed to the establishment of connections. The 34th Bienal is therefore taking place as the outcome of joint effort and leverage between the curatorial project and the institution’s activity, and due to the recognition that today, more than ever, it is necessary to underscore the importance of dialogue and relations between different individuals and groups,” states the Fundação’s President, José Olympio da Veiga Pereira.

The 34th Bienal is structured on the basis of the multiple relationships that arise among artistic and institutional questions in an event of this size. “All of the artists shown in the partner institutions will also be present at the Bienal Pavilion starting in September, but the experience the visitors will have upon encountering the works will be very different in each case. And it is in this multiplicity of possible relationships in constant transformation that this edition of the Bienal finds one of its central bearings,” says Jacopo Crivelli Visconti, chief curator of this edition.

Adjunct curator Paulo Miyada adds: “São Paulo is a complex metropolis in which many publics live together. By mobilizing this network of partnerships, the Bienal gains an opportunity to approach other urban contexts and publics that each institution cultivates on a daily basis. The visitors of a wide range of spaces will be spurred to visit the Bienal to re-encounter the work of an artist in an expanded dialogue, or, inversely, the visitors of the Bienal could be inspired to visit a new cultural space if they wish to delve longer into an artist’s production.”

Centro Cultural Banco do Brasil

Giorgio Morandi

Curatorship: Alberto Salvadori and Gianfranco Maraniello

Date: August 25 – November 21, 2020

A solo show of works by Italian painter Giorgio Morandi (1890–1964) punctuated by works of contemporary artists inspired by his oeuvre. Morandi is one of the most well-known 20th-century painters, mainly due to the depth and intensity he achieved by repeatedly painting a very restricted set of subjects. Often dedicated to the painting of still lifes – especially scenes of the same set of glass bottles – he took an apparently subtle and prosaic theme as a basis for a monumental investigation into painting, time and the relationships produced by the gaze.

Marinella Senatore

Date: September – December, 2020

The exhibition is the result of the work of immersion and collaboration by artist Marinella Senatore (1977, Cava de' Tirreni, Italy) with collectives and agents from Cidade Tiradentes interested in participating in workshops for the creation of a performative or narrative work. Trained in music, visual arts and cinema, Senatore is a multidisciplinary artist whose practice is marked by a pronounced collective and participative dimension. She develops her work in various artistic languages and supports, such as collage, performance, sculpture, photography and video, in which her personal autobiographical experience is blended with shared collective narratives. With an extensive career, the artist has shown in institutions in the United States, Israel, South Africa, China, Ecuador, and various European countries.

Antonio Dias – Arquivos de Trabalho [Archives of Work]

Date: August – November, 2020

Exhibition of material from the archive of Antonio Dias (1944, Campina Grande, PB, Brazil–2018, Rio de Janeiro, RJ, Brazil) held at the Instituto de Arte Contemporânea. Living in Rio de Janeiro from 1957 onward, the artist's vast production played a fundamental role for the Brazilian new figuration movement in the 1960s. From the end of that decade onward, he had an intense international experience and dialogue with arte povera, conceptual art and the transavantgarde. His notebooks, notes and designs offer a new entrance to his always restless thoughts. Antonio Dias presented his works in more than 100 solo and group shows at many important venues worldwide. He participated in various biennials, including the 16th, 22nd, 24th, 29th and 33rd editions of the Bienal de São Paulo, the 1st and 5th editions of the Bienal do Mercosul (1997, 2005) and the 4th and 8th editions of the Paris Biennale (1965 and 1973).

Juraci Dórea

Curatorship: Cauê Alves

Date: September – October, 2020

A solo show by an artist still little known by the general public, despite the importance of his work, mainly in regard to ecological issues and to dialogue with popular culture and the people of the backcountry. Juraci Dórea (1944, Feira de Santana, BA, Brazil) is a visual artist and architect. A pioneer in the integration of art with the landscape in Brazilian art, his work is linked with the backcountry of Bahia; more specifically, it dialogues with the civilization of leather, whose tradition still persists in the region between Monte Santo, Canudos and Feira de Santana, where he resides and works. He has participated in various divisions in Brazil and abroad. In 1996 he conceived the Museu de Arte Contemporânea de Feira de Santana.

Jaider Esbell

Date: September – December, 2020

A large show about the work and catalyzing role of artist Macuxi Jaider Esbell (1979, Normandia, RR, Brazil). Esbell lived until the age of 18 in the area which is now the Raposa Serra do Sol Indigenous Land, before moving to the state capital, Boa Vista. His first major recognition came when he was awarded the grant/scholarship Funarte/MINC for the encouragement of new writers, in 2010, with which he wrote the book Terreiro de Makunaima – mitos, lendas e histórias em vivência. In 2011, he held his self-curated first exhibition in Normandia (RR, Brazil), and in 2013 he organized the first Encontro de Todos os Povos. These three accomplishments underscore his trajectory and role in the creation of the Sistema AIC – Arte Indígena Contemporânea [Indigenous Contemporary Art]. With the concept of collectivity, Esbell works in a multiple way, combining the role of artist, curator, writer, educator, promoter and cultural catalyzer. His world views are now encompassed among the most relevant names of Brazilian “indigenous thought”.
