

finding an artwork

Until the encounter, there is a path to be traveled.

Observe your steps,
your choices,
what is around you.

Let yourself be captured by the artwork.

On it, is there room for love?

“Know without dominating. Touch without hurting. Love. Is there a better way to awaken the senses?”

Rafael Sánchez-Mateos Paniagua

Until the encounter, there is a path to be traveled.

On it, is there room for the unexpected?

Think in a random way to walk the path. For example:

Choose a number and count the artworks along your way. When you reach the chosen number, you will have found the artwork.

On it, is there room for immensity?

*“I’ll tremble with fear until I fall asleep.
And meanwhile everything is so small.
Compared to my heart’s desire
The sea is a drop.”*
Adélia Prado

Until the encounter, there is a path to be traveled.

On it, is there room to break the inaction?

“We did that often, asking each other questions whose answers we already knew. Perhaps it was so that we would not ask the other questions, the ones whose answers we did not want to know.”

Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie

On it, is there room for resistance?

*“... The water does not run through my fingers,,
I have my hands cupped
and in the concave of my palms
a half a drop is enough for me.”*

Conceição Evaristo
